

at the beginning of this project, the title was "u.f.o. (unidentified frequency oscillator)". while processing the sound files for this project, suddenly, an image came to my head: a switch on my forehead. it became very obsessive to me.

i decided to change the title from "u.f.o." to "the switch".

i was recalling when i was child, it was great fun to play with the switches on the panel of audio devices. such as; tape recorders, amplifiers, radios, etc. these new electric toys gave me much influence in my "improvisation". and yes, it was greater fun than practising the piano.

and i understand why "the switch" on my forehead. i am still doing the similar things with the new audio device: personal computer. i am just playing with the switches on the screen, like in my childhood.

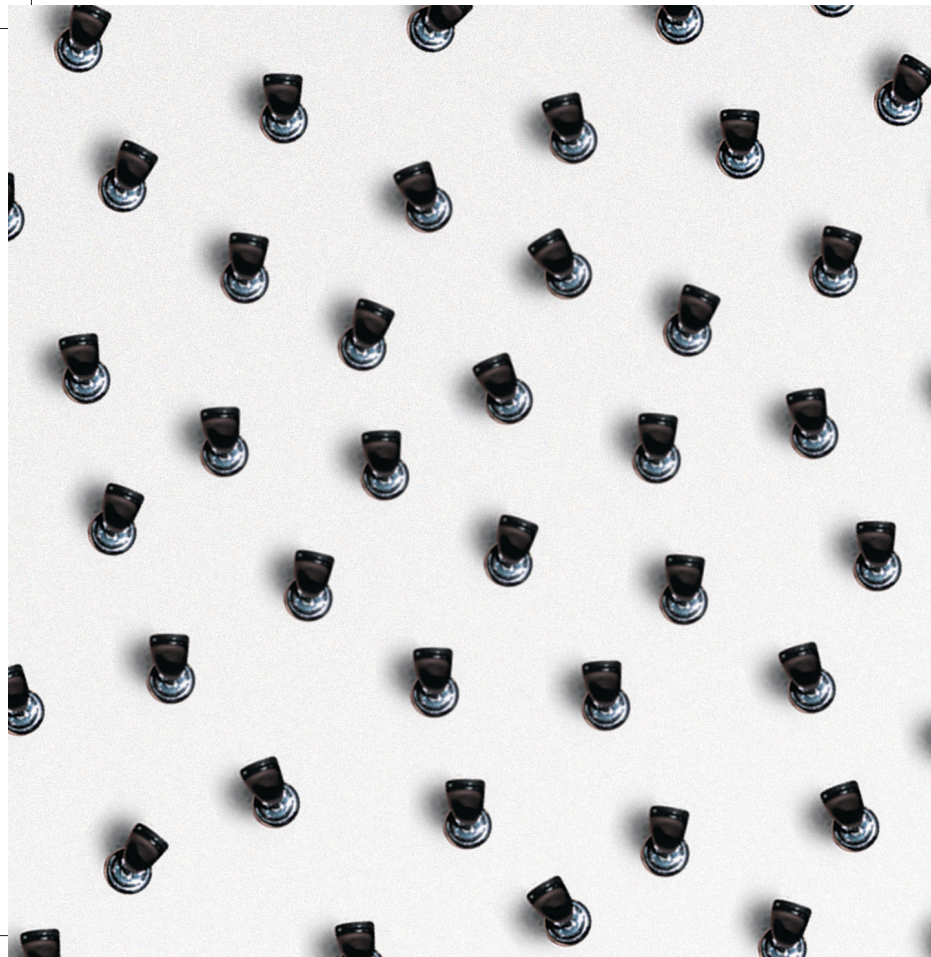

i may be obsessed by "the switch" on the panel of u.f.o.

like toffee with a new texture that's tasteless! the weird toffee is just for textural fun in the mouth. while playing its hard surface with back teeth, saliva begins oozing out slowly, making it wet and soft, suddenly the surface peels off little by little, its rough interior appears, still rolling on the tongue, wondering what kind of layer is revealed, soon the deeper layer is separated, the gluey something begins sticking to the teeth, just before it melts away, tiny hard grains spread fully around the mouth... .
